Prin. George C. Purington of the Farmington Normal School lectures at the Congregational church at 8 o'clock, Friday evening, his subject being "The Spirit that Gives Life." All are cordially invited to this as to other convention exercises.

Norway has not entertained a teachers' convention for years. Elsewhere invariably the citizens of the village furnish entertainment for visiting teachers free of cost.

Any householder in Norway village who can accommodate two or more of the teachers Friday night and till Saturday afternoon will confer a great favor if they will hand their names to a Norway teacher or to Mr. Barnes. Norway must not let teachers who come from a distance to attend this meeting return to their homes feeling that her citizens are less hospitable than other towns in the county.

William C. Stiles and wife of Portland are guests of postmaster M. P. Stiles.

A. C. Davis and wife, who have been visiting in Cornish, have returned to their home.

Rev. J. M. Pullman, who was to have been a speaker at the Universalist Centennial, but was delayed by illness, has offered to make good that failure and will lecture here in the church at a not distant date. He is an exceeding fine speaker and should gather a large hearing.

He will spend some time with his relative here, and return to college, early in January. Flattering offers have been made him by managers of baseball teams to sign with their clubs next season, but thus far Mr. Nevers has declared that he will not go in the game again.

NUMBER 42. OCTOBER 17, 1902, NORWAY AND SOUTH PARIS, MAINE. VOLUME XXXIII.

Supreme Judicial Court.

October Term, 1902.

Sheriff and jailer—James R. Tucker.
Crier—Henry E. Hammond.
Messenger—W. Adna Barrows.
Deputies in attendance—Edgar L. Flint, Wellington Bird, Fred A. Porter.
Librarian—Herrick C. Davis.

A very few minutes after ten, Tuesday morning, sheriff Tucker announced the Honorable Court. The Judge, accompanied by Rev. J. H. Little, entered. Prayer was offered by the latter, and the legal announcement of the opening of court was made by the crier.

The grand jury was impaneled, sworn by the clerk and charged by the judge. They retired to their room. The names are:

Darius S. Sanborn, Norway, foreman.
N. F. Brown, Bethel.
Henry A. Chase, Peru.
H. W. Coy, Oxford.
J. M. Doyen Mexico.
Charles W. Farrington, Fryeburg.
William Gammon, Stoneham.
Eben N. Gilpatrick, Hiram.
Charles W. Hammond, Brownfield.
Abel D. Holt, Dixfield.
Wilder V. Kimball, Rumford.
G. Perley McAllister, Lovell.
A. Lincoln Parkis, Buckfield.
Charles W. Walker, Canton.
Ashley Weeks, Porter.
George C. Cole, jr., Greenwood.
Aaron O. Corbett, Paris.
Elmer B. Davis, Woodstock.

Following the withdrawal of the grand jury, the first traverse jury was called for. The names are:

Adelbert Delano, Canton, foreman.
A. C. Andrews, Stow.
Aldana Brooks, Upton.
Alvin Brown, Norway.
Charles Chandler, Fryeburg.
William L. Chapman, Bethel.
John Colby, Denmark.
John W. Clute, Paris.
Fred J. Dunbar, Hebron.
Daniel Fletcher, Hartford.
W. S. French, Oxford.
Sherman Haselton, Albany.

They retired to their room in charge of deputy Flint, and the second jury was called for. This jury is made up of:

John E. Stephens, Rumford, foreman.
J. H. Jenne, Roxbury.
William H. Meserve, Bethel.
William A. Paul, Dixfield.
Frank E. Lunt, Brownfield.
David P. Richardson, Andover.
G. Barrett Spaulding, Buckfield.
Frank E. Stone, Sweden.
M. L. Thurston, Newry.
Elmer E. Tuell, Paris.
P. T Wadsworth, Hiram.
George C. West, Sumner.

This jury then retired in the charge of a deputy and the supernumeraries were called. Fred E. Rendall of Rumford and Frank H. Morse of Waterford were not present, having been excused. The supernumerary men are:

H. B. Whitman, Mexico.
Frank G. Noble, Norway.

The traverse juries soon returned and reported their choices of foremen. They were then excused until 8.30 the next day, as were also the supernumeraries.

The continued docket was re-called. Seventeen cases were marked for trial. A considerable number were ordered, but as usual the greater number were passed or continued.

Court then adjourned to 2 p. m.

The afternoon session, Tuesday, was devoted to the assignment of cases for trial.

Monday there are assigned Duggan against Elliott. Tuesday, Mulholland against town of Oxford, French against Higgins, Kimball against Dunton Lumber Co., Bosworth against Mitchell, Poland against Coe Co., Griffin against Murdock.

At the close of the continued docket will be McCrellis against Clement and Gillison against Resnek.

Oxford County Bar Association met at three o'clock Tuesday. The treasurer's report showed considerable money on hand and it was voted to instruct the library committee to buy a set of the Lawyer's Reports Annotated for the library. No other special business was transacted.

Tuesday afternoon the equity case of Francis A. Fox against Sherman L. Gould was heard by the court. Both parties are lawyers. The controversy is over a tract of real estate in the town of Hiram. Plaintiff claims it through a sale on execution; defendant, by deed. Plaintiff claims also that if the defendant has any title it should be treated as a mortgage and in such a case that he should be allowed to redeem. It turned out during the hearing that plaintiff's bill was defective, which brought the hearing to an abrupt termination. If defendant consents it will probably be amended and put in shape for hearing in chambers in Portland, otherwise probably the bill will be dismissed.

Henry Donahoe of Byron was admitted to citizenship.

The grand jury got to work, Tuesday morning, on the matters that are to be brought before them. It is understood that there will be a large amount of business coming before them.

Wednesday morning there were no cases on for trial, and the jury were excused to Thursday morning. The attorneys devoted the time to arranging papers, while those whose cases were to come off got together and fixed the matters up.

In the afternoon a divorce case was tried. The libelee has three days to file answer to the libel.

The case of Russell T. Merrill against D. S. Sanborn, H. M. Jackson and Alvin Brown, growing out of his removal to the town farm a few years ago was settled by consent of the parties on the payment of $125.00, and a similar case of Vera T. Merrill against the same parties was settled by payment of $200.00. These cases were assigned for trial on Thursday but are out of the way.

The case of William J. Wheeler against the town of Sumner for a defect in a bridge and consequent injury to him was settled by the payment of $15.

The cases of Leroy W. Thomas against the town of Mexico and of Cora E. Thomas against the same were assigned for trial Friday morning but were settled Wednesday.

This clears the docket for this week.

The regular temperance meeting was held, Wednesday evening. Hon. Geo. D. Bisbee presided and there were many eloquent speeches. The theme was re-submission of the prohibitory amendment, which was opposed vigorously. There was a good sized gathering.

The traverse jurors were excused, Thursday morning, until Friday.

The grand jury is in session as we go to press.

Osgood Drew of North Fryeburg was in town a few days this week.

The sign on the window of the Eastern Telephone office that has been so familiar to us by a year's association has been removed and in its place new lettering has been put on: "Eastern Telephone Co., local and long distance," corresponding with the broader scope of the company.

The New Church Plan.

The meeting of the Universalist parish was held Monday evening. A plan for the church edifice was submitted and adopted. An adjourned meeting was held on the lot Wednesday afternoon and the situation on the lot was decided. The edifice will stand back from the streets with roomy lawns and will be both by location and appearance a credit to the society and village.

The audience room is planned to be 48x40, with a vestry on the rear connected with folding doors and being a room 24x35, a small room will be built on the easterly side partly on the vestry. This allows for an organ, when one is obtained.

A tower about the height of the ridge pole is planned. It will be square and flat topped. A number of steps will lead to it from Pine street and it will be the main entrance to the church. A smaller tower on Pine street at the junction of the audience room and vestry will provide entrance to both. A ladies' parlor is planned over the vestry. The basement will contain a dining room running the length of the building, except a stage at the rear end, at the same end a kitchen will be beside the stage on the Pine street side and next to it running to Stiles street will be the furnace and fuel room of abundant space. Entrance to the furnace room and to the vestry will be on Stiles street. On account of the falling away of the land, the vestry will be mostly above ground and will be very light and dry.

The pulpit is located on the easterly side opposite the street. The capacity with the vestry opened will be about five hundred.

The cost is hoped not to exceed $6000. Work begins Thursday or Friday this week on clearing the lot.

License Law for Non-Resident Sportsmen to Be Asked—Hearing on the Matter in January—Salmon Fry for Kezar Ponds —Squirrel Hunt in Woodstock.

The Fish and Game Commissioners have sent out notice that a hearing will be given before the legislature in January, when the solons will be asked to enact a special law to license visiting hunters who come to Maine for big game.

Chairman Carleton of the commission is quoted as saying that it is useless to attempt any adequate warden service along the border of 200 miles and among the 10,000,000 acres of forest land with an annual appropriation of $25,000, nearly two-thirds is spent in propagating fish. This state of affairs reduces the problem of game protection to one or two alternatives—either the money needed for adequate warden service must be raised by some means outside of direct taxation or the deer and moose must sooner or later become extinct.

It has not been decided just how this license fee shall be assessed. It is possible that it may be decided to levy a fee upon sportsmen coming into the state or upon the carcasses of deer or moose taken out of the state. These questions together with the amount to be charged must be settled by the next legislature.

The committee on inland fish and game will be asked to put a license of from $10 to $20 upon every non-resident who goes to the wood after October 1, 1903. There can be no doubt but that a favorable report will be had on the proposition. It is also considered likely that the legislature will pass any reasonable license measure which may be proposed.

As an inducement for favorable action upon the measure Mr. Carleton will advocate the passage of a bill to reimburse the farmers for all crops destroyed by large game animals during close time. As the case stands today the farmers are compelled to involuntarily pasture the deer among their oats and beats from May until October and are fined $20 and costs for every animal shot while trespassing.

The farmers say that when open time is "on" the sportsmen from New York or Boston come to the state and kill the deer that have grown fat upon their crops. By proposing to pay the board of the protected deer there is no doubt but that Mr. Carleton is doing a service for the farmers and will make a point in winning the granger vote in the legislature, which is a very potent factor in this state.

A large fat fox ventured into the door-yard of Horace Dinsmore last Friday and went nosing around. Horace got his shot gun and now the jacket of Mr. Fox is stretching on a board in the sun.

Herbert Hall saw four deer in a group, after firing his last cartridge at one, near the Zircon House, South Rumford.

Frank Fillis shot a deer at Bethel, October 4.

J. C. Sawyer of West Stoneham recently caught a salmonthat weighed four and three-quarters pounds, and E. B. Sawyer caught one that weighed three pounds. They also got several large bass and pickerel.

Reports that reach this office are that deer abound in large numbers throughout the county, and that the hunters are having good success in bringing them down. The total number of deer taken in the county up to Wednesday noon, so far as known by us, is 24, but the chances are more than even that the number is greater than this. Thus far there has been but one accident, Everett Fox of Kezar Falls accidentally shooting himself by the discharge of a revolver in his hip pocket. He will recover.

At Sunday river two deer were taken, this week, by Leroy Stone and his son Omar after a short chase.

Charles Rose and Henry Hoyt of Littlefield got a deer, the first of the week, at that place.

Marcellus Stearns of Lovell was in town, Tuesday, and took charge of 2,000 salmon fry which had been sent from the hatchery at Auburn for the Kezar Ponds in Lovell. There has been good trout fishing in these waters for some years back, and the large number of city people who spend the hot months in that vicinity have been instrumental in forming a Fish and Game Association which has charge of stocking the ponds in that vicinity.

South Woodstock people enjoyed a squirrel hunt and supper, last Tuesday evening. It is an annual event in that town, and all the citizens who know anything about shooting join in the hunt. The captains of the sides were Harry Sanborn and Elmer Davis, the side under the leadership of the latter winning the hunt. The personnel of the teams were: E. B. Davis, F. E. Davis, Freemont Whitman, Daniel M. E. Bryant, Harry Sanborn, George W. Davis, W. S. Davis, J. H. Davis. The defeated crew gave a oyster supper to the winners and their families and a time such as never took place before in the town of Woodstock is reported.

License Law for Non-Resident Sportsmen to Be Asked—Hearing on the Matter in January—Salmon Fry for Kezar Ponds —Squirrel Hunt in Woodstock.

The Fish and Game Commissioners have sent out notice that a hearing will be given before the legislature in January, when the solons will be asked to enact a special law to license visiting hunters who come to Maine for big game.

Chairman Carleton of the commission is quoted as saying that it is useless to attempt any adequate warden service along the border of 200 miles and among the 10,000,000 acres of forest land with an annual appropriation of $25,000, nearly two-thirds is spent in propagating fish. This state of affairs reduces the problem of game protection to one or two alternatives—either the money needed for adequate warden service must be raised by some means outside of direct taxation or the deer and moose must sooner or later become extinct.

It has not been decided just how this license fee shall be assessed. It is possible that it may be decided to levy a fee upon sportsmen coming into the state or upon the carcasses of deer or moose taken out of the state. These questions together with the amount to be charged must be settled by the next legislature.

The committee on inland fish and game will be asked to put a license of from $10 to $20 upon every non-resident who goes to the wood after October 1, 1903. There can be no doubt but that a favorable report will be had on the proposition. It is also considered likely that the legislature will pass any reasonable license measure which may be proposed.

As an inducement for favorable action upon the measure Mr. Carleton will advocate the passage of a bill to reimburse the farmers for all crops destroyed by large game animals during close time. As the case stands today the farmers are compelled to involuntarily pasture the deer among their oats and beans from May until October and are fined $40 and costs for every animal shot while trespassing.

The farmers say that when open time is "on" the sportsmen from New York or Boston come to the state and kill the deer that have grown fat upon their crops. By proposing to pay the board of the protected deer there is no doubt but that Mr. Carleton is doing a service for the farmers and will make a point in winning the granger vote in the legislature, which is a very potent factor in this state.

A large fat fox ventured into the dooryard of Horace Dinsmore last Friday and went nosing around. Horace got his shot gun and now the jacket of Mr. Fox is stretching on a board in the sun.

Frank Ellis shot a deer at Bethel, October 4.

J. C. Sawyer of West Stoneham recently caught a salmonthat weighed four and three-quarters pounds, and E. B. Sawyer caught one that weighed three pounds. They also got several large bass and pickerel.

Reports that reach this office are that deer abound in large numbers throughout the county, and that the hunters are having good success in bringing them down. The total number of deer taken in the county up to Wednesday noon, so far as known by us, is 24, but the chances are more than even that the number is greater than this. Thus far there has been but one accident, Everett Fox of Kezar Falls accidentally shooting himself by the discharge of a revolver in his hip pocket. He will recover.

At Sunday river two deer were taken, this week, by Leroy Stone and his son Omar after a short chase.

Charles Rose and Henry Hoyt of Littlefield got a deer, the first of the week, at that place.

Marcellus Stearns of Lovell was in town, Tuesday, and took charge of 2,000 salmon fry which had been sent from the hatchery at Auburn for the Kezar Ponds in Lovell. There has been good trout fishing in these waters for some years back, and the large number of city people who spend the hot months in that vicinity have been instrumental in forming a Fish and Game Association which has charge of stocking the ponds in that vicinity.

South Woodstock people enjoyed a squirrel hunt and supper, last Tuesday evening. It is an annual event in that town, and all the citizens who know anything about shooting join in the hunt. The captains of the sides were Harry Sanborn and Elmer Davis, the side under the leadership of the latter winning the hunt. The personnel of the teams were: E. B. Davis, F. E. Davis, Freemont Whitman, Daniel M. E. Bryant, Harry Sanborn, George W. Davis, W. S. Davis, J. H. Davis. The defeated crew gave an oyster supper to the winners and their families and a time such as never took place before in the town of Woodstock is reported.

The bill of fare was made up of fish and game taken by Mell during the past week, and was of a high class.

NORWAY AND VICINITY

Finds the Dam All Right.

Hiram P. Farrow, inspector of dams and reservoirs, has submitted a report to the Governor and Council regarding the inspection by him of a dam located in the town of Norway. In March of the present year, the municipal officers of Norway notified Mr. Farrow that they desired him to inspect the two dams of William O. Perry, situated at the outlet of Sand Pond in Norway, which they regarded unsafe.

An examination of the premises was ordered for Sept. 13, and a hearing was subsequently had in regard to the matter. He reports that he does not consider the dams in question dangerous within the meaning of the statutes. He finds that the upper or principal dam simply fills the channel of the brook and does not raise the pond to any extent, and in the event of its failure would not seem to cause a dangerous flow, while the dam at the mill confines such a small quantity of water that it need not enter into the question.

The expense of making this examination was $45.20.

Louisa F. Titcomb.

Louisa F., daughter of the late Isaac F. and Lydia P. Titcomb, died last Wednesday night, aged nineteen years. She has been sick for a year past and the illness had developed into a paralysis, so that she had for months been unable to move, and also a blindness had resulted. She bore all the suffering with most remarkable patience, not a word of complaint having been uttered by her. She was a true and devoted Christian. The cause of death which was expected for some time was a tumor of the brain. Funeral services were held, Saturday afternoon, Rev. B. F. Fickett being the minister officiating. Burial at Pine Grove. She leaves a mother and two sisters, Addie E., wife of Forrest D. Thurston of Errol, N. H., and Emma P., wife of Chester A. Flint of Norway.

Letter to Frank T. Pike.

Norway, Me.

Dear Sir: If there is a spot in your paint where the water gets in, the wood underneath is rotting or rotten. The timbers go too.

Such a spot develops unseen in some corner—under the eaves perhaps—while the paint is still in good condition generally.

Look out for such spots, or paint at random for looks. If you paint for looks you are likely to stop such spots before there are any spots.

Extravagance pays in paint. Economy don't. Extravagance is economy. Queer what puppets words are!

Yours truly,
F. W. DEVOE & Co.

Lynn Wants the Country Shoe Factory to Return.

She Sighs for the Departed—Pays Norway's Leading Industry a Fine Compliment—As Good Workmen in Norway as in Lynn—Steady Employment—The Radcliffe Shoe Attracting the Attention of the World.

The Lynn Board of Trade sent out men to investigate and look into the country shoe factories with the object in view of getting them to return to Lynn. The following article from the Lynn Item of Sept. 24, written by one of the men who has recently visited Norway and has to deal with our Norway factories, will be read with much interest:—

In writing this week, on shoemaking, there is a particular subject on which I should like to speak. This, it seems to me, should be of interest to every citizen, every manufacturer and every shoemaker of Lynn. I refer to the tendency of shoe manufacturers to pull up stakes and leave this city whenever there is a strike of any dimension in which they are involved. Lynn has suffered through more big fires than has any other shoe city, but aside from this we have also allowed more factories to go out of our midst than has any other two cities.

If one will travel over the New England States he will find very many factories that were once located here, but besides this he will also find a good number of shops that should be running in this city, and probably would be, were it not for the strikes and fear of strikes which have played such havoc with the industry. I say that many of these factories would be operated here because it is Lynn men and Lynn capital that control them and it is only natural to expect that, other things being equal, we would have most of these shops.

When a new factory is to be erected there are many things to be taken into account, and the ability to obtain plenty of skilled workmen at going rates of wages is one of the chief things considered. Let a new concern understand that it is always liable to be in more or or less trouble with its help, if it locates in a certain community, and the chances are that it will go elsewhere. Owing to this tendency we now find big factories making good women's lines, scattered throughout Maine, New Hampshire and some other States, which ought to be here in Lynn.

Probably the lasters, more than the workers in any other department, have been the cause of most of the removals, and have also, in a measure, indirectly aided other towns and cities to get the new factories. The lasters have made a big mistake in this, for, union or no union, no boss can pay more than his business will allow him nor can he pay more than other factories for the same kind of work. As a rule, the Lynn manufacturers have always paid the highest prices for lasting, or for cutting, or for stitching, or for the work in any other department on women's shoes and it is to the credit of the Lynn manufacturers that they never attempted the string or what may be called the Cincinnati system of lasting, in which boys are made to do the most of the work.

That system was introduced into New England by the biggest manufacturer on woman's fine shoes in this country, after he had "jacked up" and left Lynn, but nobody outside of the lasters themselves were to blame for it. They had the best possible jobs in that factory at prices from 8 to 12 or 13 cents per pair for hand lasting. Never were prices any better than those which prevailed in that shop, in any department, at that time, nor have the lasters ever been able to get such good jobs since. By getting out of this city that shop saved two or three cents per pair on its lasting alone. This was the result of the strike.

I maintain that it is now possible, owing to the great introduction of machinery and the consequent sub-division of labor, to make shoes almost anywhere and especially women's shoes. In many of the New England towns there has been at some time, one or more shoe factories and in most of these towns there are shoemakers quite as good as in this city. Moreover the selectmen and Boards of Trade are always ready to talk with a shoe man who visits these towns and they are ever ready to point out the advantages and inducements which their locality offers to any good-sized manufacturer who will bring his business to their town. They will take most any factory, but they do not seem to like Lynn factories.

Now the lasters and other workmen of Lynn should understand this and it is well for them to remember that a shoe factory is not like a coal mine. The coal was there before the coal baron was born and it would be there if he never was born and the industry of coal mining can never be taken away. With the shoe factory, however, it is different and any individual manufacturer who has built up a good business whenever he thinks it is his interest to do so, can take his factory to some other section and away from any strike or labor trouble.

To give the lasters some idea of what can be done in a country town, I might mention a number of factories but I will mention one in particular, because of the fact that it is turning out excellent lines similar to those made here, and also because of the fact that it is owned or operated by Lynn men, is worthy of more than passing notice. This factory is that of the Radcliffe Shoe Co., at Norway, Me., which is now turning out about 1800 pairs a day of women's $2.50 and $3.00 shoes. These are all McKay goods, with not a particle of shoddy about them, and are as good a shoe as can be made anywhere in this country. In this factory men must be good shoemakers to hold their jobs and the superintendent, who is also a Lynn man, knows all about a shoe. The system of lasting is different from that of other shops, for here the puller-over does not have any lasts to look up and none to pull out. Neither does the laster have to tack his counters at the corners, as in other shops. The price paid is 21 cents per dozen and the average laster can do about four 36-pair cases which gives him about $2.50 per day. This I call a good fair job on McKay work.

All stock comes direct to the laster with 36 pair of lasts on which the shoes stay a day or two before being pulled off for the McKay sewing.

As all shoes in this factory are good ones they are just as fussy over one as over another and every part of the work must be perfect. Soles are moulded in good shape while there are one or two crowners to look over shoes before they get to the finishing. Any tack that shows up on the inside is pulled out or cut off before shoes are beat out. They put in a heavy sock lining which is skived right off the sole and which makes the best possible smooth inner.

Norway is a smart little town and if anybody thinks that shoes can't be made there, or in other places in the country, they do not understand the true situation. They have just as good workmen there as here, and these are sure of work all the time, as the factory runs very steady. The factory is one of the largest and neatest that it has ever been my good fortune to get into.

In this factory, also, they have some of the best ideas of making McKay shoes I ever saw in practice. If there is anything wrong with a shoe it is known before it goes to the next operator, and as a consequence there are very few or no shoes to pay for. Both uppers and soles are good, the latter being in single, half double, or mock welt, to imitate the Goodyear. The welt is cemented to the outside and then it is fair-stitched all around before laying it. That shoe is filled with cork filling making it in every respect an up to date shoe. It would puzzle even a shoemaker to tell whether it was a McKay or welt, as it looks a perfect welt.

On such a job Lynn lasters could earn $15 to $18 a week right along and others would earn about the same all through the show. When lasts come all sized out, and uppers all tied up in bunches on top of the lasts all ready for the laster, and with the operator wetting up the tips, with 36 or 60 pair lasts right there for the laster, and none of these lasts to be pulled afterwards, what more can a laster ask? I never saw a job any better than this and I know of no shop in this city where conditions are any better.

A sole layer can lay the whole 36 pairs at one time right off the rack, if he wants to and he is not bothered with different soles, such as heavy welts and thin edges. He is not shifting or setting his machine all of the time and if he cares to he can lay 100 dozen a day or enough at least to earn $4 or $4.50. As for the operators on the lasting machines, they get from 15½ to 20½ cents a dozen, the latter price being for enamel shoes or "Ideal" kid. At these prices the operator don't have to do a bay rack full of shoe to get a day's pay.

I mention the different branches of lasting here, so that Lynn lasters may see conditions as they exist in factories that could be located here as well as elsewhere. While I do not say that this business, or this shop would have been started here in the first place, still I can see no reason to prove that it would not be located here other than the altitude of the lasters for the past 25 or more years. Some shops have started 100 miles or more from this city, simply because firms were afraid of the unions, or the damage they might do to business, through strikes while other shops have been driven away by the same strikes. Take the big Plant factory, for instance which is now the largest single factory in the business, exceeding even the Douglass factory in the number of hands employed, and does any laster think that he has improved his chances by having that business carried on outside of Lynn? Lasters who helped to make it impossible for a factory with the big pay roll of the Plant factory to do business in this city, did a very poor job for Lynn.

A factory like that of the Radcliffe Shoe Co., notwithstanding that it is very successful at Norway, would still be better off, to my way of thinking, if its business was carried on here, instead of away from the shoe centers. I do not think that they are getting their shoes made much cheaper than they would get them made here, and since the shoemaker's union came into existence, there has been no trouble here nor is there likely to be any more strikes here than elsewhere. This new union is opposed to strikes, and it is the policy to everywhere avoid them.

In the future there will be no trouble, or at least not enough of it to stop any concern from making shoes in this city. In fact, if there are any more strikes a manufacturer in a big shoe center like this is better able to keep his wheels running than he would be in a small town far away from other manufacturing centres. However, we will hardly consider strikes probable in the future, for the union label and arbitration clauses ought to be enough to prevent them.

In comparing this city with any town in New England or elsewhere the advantages are all here, and I fail to see why any shop starting on women's shoes could find good reasons for going away from this city in search of a location. Any shop, and especially a shop making good work, can get its help here quicker than elsewhere and no factory need wait three or four days, as they do in many sections, before they can get a good operator. A factory located in Lynn has the pick of the best shoemakers in the country and all machines, or parts of machines, are to be had whenever they are wanted. It costs less for freight, too, and here they find soles, counters, heels, etc., all of which are brought right to the factory, as ordered. A manufacturer, too, can go to Boston in 17 or 20 minutes, to buy goods or see shoe buyers, and he can come back to his factory just as quickly. This counts for considerable, for his presence in the factory is often worth hundreds of dollars to the manufacturer. Besides all these there is the heat, power and lines of shafting, fully as cheap or cheaper than elsewhere. Factories of any dimensions will be built, too, to accommodate any business.

When all these things are considered it is surprising that the factories yet making good lines outside of Lynn do not come here. As many of these shops are advertising their shoes, it would be to their advantage to advertise their product as being made at Lynn. The Board of Trade has been searching for foreign markets of late, so that more shoes could be made in this city, but I urge on the board the advisability of asking manufacturers of good women's shoes to locate here. It is said by some parties that it may be just possible that some of these big factories would not require very much coaxing to come here. Those who hold this view may have some grounds for it, but of that I am not positive, nor do I wish to give rise to any wrong impression. It is no trouble, however, to advertise Lynn to the shoe manufacturers of this country.

Norway Wins its First Game.

Defeats South Paris High School 16 to 5 Saturday—Team Play of Both Sides Generally Good—Enthusiasts Out in Force.

The Norway high school football eleven played rings around the boys of the South Paris school on the fair grounds, Saturday afternoon, winning their game by a score of 16 to 5. The Paris averaged a bit heavier than the home eleven, but their line bucking and rushing was not to be compared with that of the locals

Thibodeau and Cotton distinguished themselves for the Norways by making big gains after getting the ball, the former making a thirty-five yard run and the former doing one for 30. Lyons, of the Paris eleven, who, it is understood, is not a student at the South Paris school, made a 40-yard run during the early part of the game. He also scored the only points his side was able to get, a pretty place kick from the 20-yard line in the first half.

The general play of the Norway team was good but there is chance for great improvement, especially at the ends and in interference. There was little kicking from the field, the excuse of both sides being that they had not had practice in that important part of the game. There was a good crowd present and the good playing of both teams was liberally cheered.

Uncommon Animal, This.

Cross Between a Durham Cow and Maine Moose Owned by J. F. Cornish—Blind, Halt and Wild—Museums After It.

A cross between a red flannel shirt and Rudyard Kipling's poem, "Rhyme of the Three Sealers," is the animal now traveling through Maine in charge of F. J. Cornish of Bowdoinham. It is a four-months' old animal born in that town, the mother being a cow and the father a moose, which had spent many happy days with the former in the green pastures on Mr. Cornish's farm.

The little fellow is totally blind, is of the color of a moose and has the compo nent parts of a steer and heifer. In the center of the back is a hump, much after the pattern of a camel, while the head is shaped like a sheep. The horns, what there is of them, look like those of the ram, and the hoofs are built from the model of a deer's. It has no tail and its legs are short and stocky, giving evidences of great strength and a sugges tion of a bit of speed if trouble is anywhere near.

The mother of the animal was a two-year-old Durham heifer, which had been running wild in the woods and fields during the greater part of the summer, but in early June came to the barn of her own accord and gave birth to the calf soon after. Later she took to the woods and has not since been seen.

Her offspring has had no great liking for any cow's milk, but prefers green brush that is young and tender with plenty of leaves on the branches. It turns its head away from good hay or straw, will not eat meal and refuses to drink from a bucket.

When dogs approach it jumps and rears and tears at a great rate, making vain attempts at getting away from its leash. It has no particular liking for human beings but to Mr. Cornish it takes kindly, probably having sense enough to realize that if it gets away from him it will have hard work, having no eyesight, in picking up a living.

Men who are wise in matters pertaining to the cow and moose family have had a look at the animal, but thus far none have had the hardihood to suggest any reason why such an animal should happen to come into the world, unless the Durham heifer made love to and eloped with a bull moose during her hours of leisure.

Mr. Cornish has showed the animal at a few fairs, and has had several offers from representatives of museums in different parts of the country to take the animal and bring it up in the ways he should go. It is not unlikely that he will finally land in the New York zoological garden. O. WARREN BROWN.
